

Iditarod

The Last Great Race

Iditarod

VS.

Winter Olympics

I finally see the finish line. I pass it as the excited crowd around me cheers loudly. I quietly weep tears of joy, all that hard work thanks to my great huskies. I won the Iditarod! The Iditarod is a great sport where you are in the wilderness with some huskies that pull your sled to the finish line. One of the great things about this sport is that you are required to help opponents. Though this sport only happens once every year it has a lot of contestants against each other. This sport is great because it was made at first to honor the huskies.

"I did it I won the Winter Olympics!" It was a close one but I managed to do everything to get a 10 from the judges. To win the Olympics you have to do everything perfectly. Millions of people are watching me I can't believe it! The Winter Olympics is a sport that includes every sport that has snow or ice like ice skating, skiing, and snow boarding. Though it only happens once every four years, only experts at the sports are allowed to be in the Winter Olympics.

I think both are great but personally I think the Iditarod is the best because of its creativity.
